SOUTH END GROUNDS, BOSTON, Oct. 4.—The Giants lost the first game of the double-header, which winds up the season of 1902, through bad playing in the field. They made errors at critical stages. This, with Boston's few hits, which were always timely, helped the Bostonians to win.

Mathewson pitched an excellent game, as did Malarkey. The New Yorkers failed to bat when they had men on bases, One of their pair of runs was made chiefly through Malarkey's bad work in fielding.

When the second game started, Victor

Willis was sent in to pitch for the Bostons. Moran was sent in to catch his surves. McGinnity and Bowerman were the Giants' battery. First Inning.

First Inning—Browne lifted a fly to Dexter. Long helped Bresnahan out. Lush took McGann's fly. No runs. Lush walked, but Tenney forced him at second. Dexter lined a fly to McGinnity, and Tenney was doubled up at first. No runs.

Second Inning.

Brodie got two bases on Demont's bad throw of his hit. Bowerman bunted a pop fly to Greminger. Just as Lauder fanned Brodie stole third and scored on Moran's poor throw to catch him. Long helped Smith out. One run. Smith threw Cooley out. Demont hit for a base past Smith. Brodie got Greminger's fly. Demont stole second. Long was helped out by Smith. No runs.

Dunn beat out his hit to Long. He was caught trying to steal second. Mc-Ginnity hit to centre for a base. He stone second. Browne fanned. Bresnahan walked. McGann reached first on Demont's error. Brodie's safety scored McGinnity and Bresnahan. Bowerman filed to Lush. Two runs.

Moran hit safely to centre. Willis's foul filed to Bowerman, Lush fanned. Brodie took Tenney's fly. No runs.
